UConn 4-H Fact Sheet Communication

COMMUNICATION

Communication is a key element in the success of any organization. Communication builds relationships. Your relationship with your 4-H members will be built on the communication which takes place among all of you as a group.

COMMUNICATION: A TWO-WAY PROCESS

Communication is a two-way process. It involves both parties sending and receiving messages. To communicate effectively, individuals involved in a communication exchange must be responsible speakers and listeners.

COMMUNICATING AS A 4-H LEADER

How often does a 4-H leader communicate? The following are some examples of times you'll need to use your communication skills.

\Rightarrow Communicating with 4-H Leaders & Parents

- Teaching your 4-Hers a skill, helping with projects
- Reminding your 4-Hers/parents of meeting dates, supplies needed, etc.
- Informing 4-Hers/parents of upcoming county-wide events
- Assisting 4-Hers in preparing for the 4-H fair (filling out exhibit tags, etc.)
- Helping 4-Hers and parents complete 4-H member registration forms
- Training club officers
- Recruiting parents to assist with club communication with the local Extension office
- Receiving training from 4-H staff
- Reading 4-H newsletters
- Completing and submitting paperwork
- Requesting educational materials and information about the 4-H Program
- Volunteering to assist with county, state and regional events

⇒ Communicating with other 4-H Volunteers

- Participating in 4-H Volunteers meetings
- Serving on advisory and program committees
- Training a co-leader/teen leader
- Asking for/lending moral support
- Sharing ideas informally
- Attending leader conferences

⇒ Other Opportunities for Communication

- Informing local press of club activities
- Organizing a club fund raiser and/or soliciting donations from local businesses
- Serving on county or statewide 4-H advisory committees or programs

TYPES OF COMMUNICATION

It is important to know that there are many ways to communicate. The two main types of communication are verbal and nonverbal.

Verbal communication entails one person speaking and the other listening.

Nonverbal communication comes in a variety of forms. It entails one person observing another person engaged in one of these activities:

- Facial expressions (i.e., smile, frown, rolling of the eyes, etc.)
- Gestures (i.e., handshake, nod, making a fist, etc.)
- Other forms of body language (i.e., turning away from someone, dozing off, etc.)
- Sounds that are not words (i.e., laughter, snort, groan, etc.)

Keep in mind when working with 4-H members that there are many ways to communicate. Be aware of facial expressions or other forms of nonverbal communication. Nonverbal communication often sends the strongest message and can cancel a verbal message. Listen by observing, and you'll be able to build better 4-H club relationships.

4-H LEADER COMMUNICATION TIPS

- Listen! This means working to understand what the speaker is saying.
- Maintain eye contact with children and adults it lets them know they are communicating with you.
- If you don't understand what your 4-H member, parent or 4-H staff member is saying, ask!
- Be honest and straightforward set a good example for your 4-H members.
- Be aware of the nonverbal communication going on among your 4-H members.
- When necessary, set aside an appropriate time and place for communication. (conference with a parent, etc.)
- Encourage your 4-Hers to communicate. Ask them, "What questions do you have?" and let them do the talking as often as possible.
- Respond to the requests made by the 4-H staff that way, they know you're still out there and surviving!

USE OF SOCIAL MEDIA

- Be Active: Social media should be social. Engaging with others can be rewarding, when done constructively. Sometimes it is better to not engage too.
- Be Respectful: Social media is a unique social environment. Be respectful of others' views, regardless of how unartfully or inappropriately communicated.
- Think Twice: Social media is a public platform. Consider whether you would make a statement on social media at a conference or to the media before posting.
