

Career Connection – Physical Oceanographer

Scientists that explore how water moves in the ocean, including waves, tides, and currents. These properties of the ocean can affect other marine careers, such as fishing and transportation of goods via boats and barges. Waves, tides, and currents also affect the marine animals and plants that live in the ocean. The movement of ocean water can stir up new food for marine creatures and can transport them to new places.

Source: 2022 4-H STEM Challenge